NEWS OF CHURCHES

On The Value of Friends.

We do not always realize how much of the happiness of life we owe to our friends. It may seem to be a trivial thing that you happen to have considerate and congenial neighbors, whom you like to meet on the street, or to have run in to spend an evening, but when you reflect how pleasant this association is and what it would mean to you and to your family to remove to some strange place, where you had to make acquaintances all over, you begin to look at the matter in a different light. After you have passed a certain stage it is almost impossible to make new friends, and for such people a change of residence to a place among strangers is a little less than a calamity. It is not merely sympathy and the sense of human comradeship and interest that our friends give us; they are a most valuable means of education if they are wise, alert and thoughtful. A friend who is a student will give you in an evening's chat an insight into many volumes. And even when your friend does not have attainments beyond your own, it is worth while to correct your point of view upon many matters by discussion and argument. But remember that he that would have friends must show himself friendly, and you cannot expect to reap the choicest fruits of your friendship unless you are willing to contribute your share to the common stock. It is a fine art to get friends, and to keep them.—The Watchman.

Gospel Standard of Thought.

Great and lasting reforms which have benefited affected entire nations have begun by one earnest man; others by a few men. As they spoke and worked for the right—for eternal principles and, therefore, for human welfare—God worked with them. Success was inevitable, even though the struggles were long and continued. In the overcoming of evils of every kind, that are entrenched in long-established customs, and a self-interest that would retain its unrighteous revenues, patient, Christian and persevering effort is demanded. And here again we may emphasize the importance of the work of the churches of every name in holding their members and others to a continuous consideration of the Gospel standard of life, of thought and action.—The Universalist Leader.

Church Attendance.

Attendance at worship in true spirit in obedience to the Lord's commandments is attended by a genuine and not a spurious delight. Do right because it is right, and true joy will attend the act. The duty may feel irksome at first, because this passes away in time, and an increasing delight takes its place. When the call to worship is answered as a duty, then the real blessings of it begin to grow out of it. From an obedient love of the Church springs a pure love of her for her own sake. Our love of the Church increases as we become possessors of the rich gifts which the Lord through her promises to us.—The Helper.

DOWN THE AISLES.

Rev. A. E. Cory will speak at a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. hall this evening. The subject will be, "Wanted, a Man." There will be special music. A general invitation is extended to all men.

Young men will be especially in the mind of President Arthur Maxon Smith, Ph. D., of Oahu college, who he occupies the Central Union pulpit this morning and speaks on "Twentieth Century Opportunities." In the evening the pastor continues his series of sermons on "Home-Making," his special subject being "The Marriage Relation."

A special young people's meeting will be held in the Methodist church this evening. The pastor will preach on the subject, "Young People and the Work of the Kingdom." Short addresses will be made by Mrs. H. E. Coleman, secretary of the Y. W. C. A.; A. J. Coats, assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; and M. G. Johnson, president of the Epworth league.

Paul Stuck in the Mud.

Last Thursday night Paul Isenberg, on his way to Lihue, on Kauai, had quite an experience in the storm. The vehicle in which he was riding and the horse got mired and despite the efforts of the horse the rig was immovable. Paul, seeing that the horse could not pull the rig, got out and tried to assist the animal. He put his shoulder to the wheel and finally the rig was released. But the difficulty had grown more serious, as it was found that Paul was stuck hard and fast. A passerby, seeing his predicament, went to Lihue, a distance of eight miles, for assistance, which was soon forthcoming in a wagon and four strong horses.

Paul was singing a rollicking little ditty from one of the operas when the rescue party arrived and seemed none the worse for his wetting.

WOMAN'S GUILD SOCIAL AT ST. ANDREW'S CATHEDRAL

Successful Financially and Very Enjoyable From a Social Point of View.

The Woman's Guild of the Second Congregation of St. Andrew's cathedral gave a very successful social yesterday afternoon. The Sunday school room was converted into a tropical grotto by the decorating committee. The decorations were put on under the supervision of Mrs. F. W. Glade, Mrs. Lees, Mrs. E. W. Jordan, Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. Keen. Palm branches, ferns, flags and flowers were used. In various parts of the room fancy booths were made, at which dainty articles were offered for sale. At some of the stands refreshments were dispensed. Mrs. F. W. Glade and Mrs. E. W. Jordan presided at the ice cream booth. Mrs. C. B. Cooper and Mrs. Ed Tenny had charge of the tea booth. At this stand tea, fancy china cups and souvenir spoons were offered for sale. A children's booth at which were kept a large variety of toys was managed by Mrs. Lees and Mrs. Crane. The booth at which home-made candies were sold was in charge of Mrs. Keen and Mrs. R. A. Jordan. Mrs. Lawrence dispensed the lemonade. The fancy work table was looked after by Mrs. Melanphy and Mrs. Robertson. All the articles were donated by the members of the guild and represented a large amount of work.

The attendance was good and the receipts satisfactory, being $250 in round figures. Mrs. C. L. Crabbe, secretary of the guild, supervised the affair and assisted in taking care of the throng of callers.

The ladies of the guild wish to thank the several people who gave them assistance in the work.

WHEREIN THE MEAT EATER EXCELS THE VEGETARIAN

Vegetarianism is a growing fad. Even in the small towns the intellectual and spiritual have their tea and wafer clubs, where the barbarisms of meat eaters are denounced, and slaughtering of animals for food is voted brutal. The rapid increase of vegetarians has led to investigation of their claims by medical scientists. If the views of Dr. Norburne B. Jenkins, a Chicago medical writer, are correct, vegetarians and their doctrines will hereafter be amusing rather than taken seriously. "It cannot be denied," said Dr. Jenkins, "that many persons and races of people can live, thrive and grow fat without animal food. There are Andeans who eat nothing but bananas, and are able to make themselves incomparable beasts of burden. The porter of Smyrna is a veritable cart, carries a heavy burden all day and eats nothing but dates and rice. Everybody knows that the Chinese live largely on grain and vegetable food, many of them never tasting meat. Many of these vegetarians are the healthiest and strongest of people."

"Such facts as these are conclusive evidence to many. They consequently shun animal food and hope to be strong and healthy without meat. "Animals like lions, tigers and leopards must have the freshest of animal food, meat that has been killed but a few hours—indeed live rabbits, goats and sheep are sometimes fed to delicate and sickly animals in zoos with the most beneficial results."

"The races of men and animals differ more in their internal construction than in outward appearance. The visceral anatomy of some races of people is somewhat like the goat, the rabbit and the dog, while in others it is more like that of the dog, the cat and animals of prey. The small, the digestive intestine is many feet longer and of much larger surface and capacity in vegetable-eating nations than in meat-eaters, and this ludicrous and invidious fact speaks volumes. While our people have only from fifteen to nineteen feet of small intestine, the vegetarian nations have from twenty to twenty-seven feet, and some individuals of them have been found to have an enormous length, even as much as fifty or fifty-five feet. This fact is testified to by Konig, Gruber and other great medical authorities."

"Of all the world the workingman of this country has to think as he works. He is in no sense a beast of burden; he cannot live on grain. One-third of the blood in his entire body is needed to keep his brain active. His labor is feverish and competitive. All this and more is in his work that is not in others. He needs rapid nerve-repairing food, strong red meats. He cannot do such work except with these. A man might be a quiet, intellectual sage on vegetables, or can be a beast of burden and live on such, if he has the right kind of viscera; but he cannot do fierce, nerve-smashing, competitive work, or be a good soldier, without meat, and plenty of it."

"One needs a certain racial, geographical and anatomical disposition to be a good vegetarian. Of all peoples we are the least so qualified. The vegetarian races have on an average five to ten feet more of intestine than meat-eaters, and so can live and toil on grain and vegetables, but they cannot build war ships, bridges, typesetting machines, skyscrapers, locomotives, etc."

"It is safe to say that this century's unprecedented use of meat has had nearly as much to do with speeding and progressing civilization as either coal or iron. The American cannot do the skilled and speedy work required of him and meet the world's competition, as he now does, unless he has an abundance of meat."

"The recent experiments of living on a few cents a day are most unfortunate and misleading, for some of our people may be tempted to economize in this dangerous way. The workingman of this country is so constituted that he cannot do this safely, and it is foolish and hazardous for him to attempt such a thing."

"Every man who works should eat at least one pound of fresh, rare beef daily. The man who eats meat and works to earn it, too, makes the best citizen and workman and the bravest soldier."
